Trouble Solver For Automobile

(If you have any troubles or wish any information about your automobile write to Frederick C. Guerrilch, M. E., Stamford, Connecticut.)

Q. I have a car, run about 1,500 miles. Do you think it is advisable to take down the engine and clean the cylinder rings? I have cleaned the head and flushed out with kerosene oil. I have not the time or experience to do it and am a long way from a good garage. What should I do to keep down the carbon? I would appreciate any advice on what I could do to keep the engine in good running order. Is there any way of telling if there is carbon in the rings without taking the engine down? W. A. T.

A. Your rings are now well worn in and in better shape even than when the engine was new. Do not touch them. Perhaps when you have run the engine from six to ten times as long as you already have, it will pay to install new rings or to have the old ones cleaned. While an excess of carbon will cause loss of power and possibly overheating or pre-ignition, it is a bugbear about what many people worry needlessly. It will affect the valves the most, and I think you will do well to have the valves ground in now.

Unless you have been using too much oil or had the mixture very rich, there should not be enough carbon formed to cause any trouble.

To get the best service out of your car, study your instruction book and pay close attention to the lubricating of the various parts. Also periodically test the various bolts and nuts to see that they are tight, but in testing them do not use a hammer or a lever on the pedals. Outside of the above, and grinding the valves from time to time and refilling with new oil every 1,000 miles, the car should require little attention.

Q. I have a 1918 model Ford car and after the engine is running for there is a popping sound at the other not a base explosion but just a pop seeming to come between explosions. The engine after getting thoroughly warmed up and left to idle very slowly will sometimes go perfectly at the lowest speed it could be expected to run at, then at other times there seems to be a considerable break, or jerk in combustion although even at these speeds to the firing perfectly. When under load, the engine runs perfectly so far as I can tell, and will pull the limit. J. B. W.

A. The muffler popping would indicate that there is a slight miss at the low speeds, and this might be due to any of the causes of missing. The spark plugs may be a little dirty or the points slightly too far apart, the compression may be poor, the carburetor adjustment may not be the best or there may be an in-leakage of false air at the carburetor connection. Nine out of ten engines will act as does yours, and if there is no pulling in traffic, it need not be worried about.

Q. There is a funny squeaking noise, like wind, in the back of my car. I thought that it might be a puncture, but the tire does not get flat. Can you tell me what it could be? E. J. K.

A. One or more of the demountable rim bolts are loose. Tighten them and all the way around. Look for the others that are tight first.

Q. Is it oil or a grease you use to use in the differential and transmission? I was told that a heavy steam grease was best, but it seems to come out of the axle. K. J.

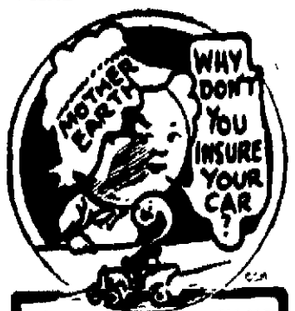
A. If the oil comes out of the axle use a grease. In choosing get a grease that will "fray out" of the gear when applied, and also which will stay on the finger of a stick.

Q. There is a bad miss in my 1911 ——. I have located it in the fifth cylinder changed the spark plugs and even spark is O. K., but no help. The miss is only there at low speeds. When I go fast I can't notice it. M. J.

A. Spark being O. K., poor compression or weak valve springs will be the cause of the missing. Try inserting a screw driver in the valve springs while engine is running and see if the miss disappears. Also the spark it don't help any. What check up the valve clearances, and is the matter? A. E. S.

A. Your engine is undoubtedly grind the valves.

Q. My engine knocks when I pull on a hill, and when I pull back play in a bearing or wrist pin. J. C.



WHY SHOULD YOU TAKE A CHANCE MR. MAN?

ASK PAUL J. TOBIN

WHY you shouldn't take a chance, that's all. Let us write an insurance policy that covers any possible damages to your car and also assumes any liability for damages charged against your car. Let our insurance company take the chance and fight the case if necessary. That's what they are in business for.

An Automobile Battery Built Like a Bridge and Guaranteed for Two Years

IF this guarantee needed an explanation, this would be it:

We have built this battery like a bridge. We have braced every plate against the terrible strain it must resist, exactly the same way as a bridge is braced. And just as a bridge rarely buckles under its load, so a Diamond Grid plate rarely buckles or short circuits.

In addition, the Philco Slotted Retainer, a new patented feature, adds fully 33⅓% to the extraordinarily long life of the Philco Diamond Grid Battery.

This makes the two-year guarantee conservative.

THE HEART of THE NEW HAYNES HAS AN ABUNDANCE OF VELVETY POWER

THE Haynes motor has always been an integral part of the Haynes automobile—ever since Elwood Haynes, twenty-eight years ago, created America's first car.

A large part of the enviable reputation of the Haynes has been built upon the stamina and dependability of the famous Haynes motor. The Haynes motor is manufactured by experts in the Haynes factories.

Haynes engineers, profiting by twenty-eight years of experience, have from time to time developed improvements in the motor. Like the new Haynes itself, the Haynes motor is a token of the constant progress of automobile-making in which the Haynes has led.

Whether it is the Light Six or the Light Twelve motor it is designed and perfected for its special functions.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FERN BASKET.

[BY HOWARD R. GARIS.]
[Copyright 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

One day, when Uncle Wiggily Longears, the bunny rabbit gentleman, was hopping through the woods, looking for an adventure, he came to a little dinky dell, or pretty place, where, beside a spring of sparkling water, he saw some ferns growing.

They were little baby ferns, as yet, but when a few more April showers had sprinkled them, and some soft May sunshine had warmed them, the ferns would grow up large and tall.

"Still they are big enough for what I want," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he saw them. "Do you mind, ferns," he asked, "if I pick some of your leaves to make a basket for the lady mouse teacher in the hollow stump school?"

"We shall be delighted to have you pick us," answered the ferns, nodding their green leaves. So Uncle Wiggily picked some, and, by twining them together and weaving them in and out, the bunny gentleman soon made a little basket.

"But what shall I have for a bottom to my fern basket?" thought Uncle Wiggily for there was a hole where the ferns did not quite come together. I think some soft, green moss will make a fine bottom," went on Mr. Longears. So in the bottom of his basket he put some soft green moss.

"Now my fern basket is finished and I shall take it to the lady mouse teacher of the hollow stump school," Uncle Wiggily said, twinkling his pink nose, and off he hopped through the woods.

He had not gone very far before it began to shower, as it often does in April, and when the drops came pelting down Uncle Wiggily hopped under a tree, as he saw no toadstools which he could pick for an umbrella.

And as the rain came down harder and harder, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily heard a voice crying:

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! What shall I do? My legs are wet and my wings are, too."

Then he saw a poor little honey bee, all soaking wet, trying to fly under the tree for shelter.

"Wait a minute, I'll help you!" cried the bunny. Rushing out into the rain Uncle Wiggily carefully took the wet bee off a leaf and put the poor creature in his tall, silk hat.

"Thank you for bringing me in out of the wet," buzzed the bee, when it was a little dried out. "I started to look for some early honey flowers and I didn't see the rain clouds. You are very kind, Uncle Wiggily."

"Oh, I am happy and glad to do you a favor," said the bunny gentleman. "But, as I need to wear my hat, would you mind if I put you in the fern basket until your legs and wings are dry?"

"I should love a fern basket of all things," buzzed the bee. So Uncle Wiggily put the honey creature in the soft, green moss bottom of the fern basket and said:

"Well, the rain is stopping now, my bee friend. I shall travel on and carry you in the fern basket back to your home. Then I'll take the basket to the lady mouse teacher in the hollow stump school."

"Thank you," buzzed the bee. "I shall love to be carried along in your fern basket!"

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along with the fern basket on his paw, and in the basket was the bee resting on the soft green moss.

All of a sudden, as the bunny

"Oh, how my nose burns!" howled the Bob Cat.

gentleman was hippity-hopping along, he heard a gruff voice from behind a bush cry out:

"Hold on there! Stop a minute!" Out popped the bad old Bob Cat, or lynx.

"What is it you want?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Is it my ears?"

"Partly that!" growled the Bob Cat. "But I also want to see what you have in that basket you are carrying on your paw. I s'pose it's something good for Grandpa Goosey Gander. Well, I'll eat that first and nibble your ears afterward!"

"Oh, no, there isn't anything good to eat in my fern basket!" quickly said Uncle Wiggily. "All there is in it is—well, there isn't anything you'd care about," and the bunny gentleman sort of twinkled his pink nose, for he didn't want to tell about the bee.

"Ha! You are trying to fool me! There is something good in that fern basket, and I'm going to have it!" howled the Bob Cat. Then he leaped over and stuck his head down in the green moss.

And as soon as he did that the bee stung the Bob Cat on the end of his snoopy-oopy nose.

"Oh, wouch! Oh, ouch! Oh, you have a hot coal of fire in your basket!" howled the Bob Cat, for that is what the bee stung him like. "Oh, how my nose burns!"

"It wouldn't have burned, or been stung, if you had kept your nose out of my fern basket!" laughed the bee. And the bunny gentleman was hippity-hopping along, he heard a gruff voice from behind a bush cry out:

"Hold on there! Stop a minute!" Out popped the bad old Bob Cat, or lynx.

"What is it you want?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Is it my ears?"

"Partly that!" growled the Bob Cat. "But I also want to see what you have in that basket you are carrying on your paw. I s'pose it's something good for Grandpa Goosey Gander. Well, I'll eat that first and nibble your ears afterward!"

"Oh, no, there isn't anything good to eat in my fern basket!" quickly said Uncle Wiggily. "All there is in it is—well, there isn't anything you'd care about," and the bunny gentleman sort of twinkled his pink nose, for he didn't want to tell about the bee.

"Ha! You are trying to fool me! There is something good in that fern basket, and I'm going to have it!" howled the Bob Cat. Then he leaped over and stuck his head down in the green moss.

And as soon as he did that the bee stung the Bob Cat on the end of his snoopy-oopy nose.

"Oh, wouch! Oh, ouch! Oh, you have a hot coal of fire in your basket!" howled the Bob Cat, for that is what the bee stung him like. "Oh, how my nose burns!"

"It wouldn't have burned, or been stung, if you had kept your nose out of my fern basket!" laughed the bee.

JUBILEE'S PARDNER

by Judd Mortimer Lewis

"I had not thought up any thing to do with my tire when I woke up this morning. When I went out to the barn to milk the drowsed brute I snuck it along, and I tried to blow it up with my hand over the place where the bust is, but I did not have enough wind. I would not think it would take so much wind.

I thought mebby our cow could do it, but when I went to see if I could get her to try it I found that the mouth was not shaped right, and I was playing with it so long that my father called me to know if the cow had kicked my brains out. He needn't worry. If I had any brains I would not be wearing short pants all my life and milking a cow and her dotter twice a day.

My mother said that she had to go to town and might not get back till noon and I must stay and take care of Annabell Lee, and when she went my ant went with her, and I took Annabell Lee and my tire out under my lookout tree which I fixed yesterday and waited for the bunch to come, but I guessed they were walling somewhere for me to come, and neither of us didn't. So then I put the tire around Annabell Lee double, and put the end through and that left a dandy place to tie some thing to, so that gave me an idee.

I went and got the rope I pull Jubilee up with and tied it in the end of the tire and then I clum up the tree, but when I got up to the branched the rope was kinda short, so I hung by my knees to a limb and let my head hang down and then I pulled Annabell Lee up off the ground. She is a heavy little bugger when she is lifted up like that, but I finely got her up to where I was and then. I put one arm through the tire and then I could use both arms to climb with so I finely got her up to the lookout board, and then I put the rope through the tire and tied it around the board and there she was.

Jubilee wanted me to pull him up but I did not have another rope. Then Mrs. Farrel come out of her yard and screamed when she seen Annabell Lee and said for me to take her down out of that instantly, and I asted her who she thought she was the mother of, and she said if I saw her kid she would beat me

And just then my mother and ant both came, and when me and Jubilee heard them scream we skun out through the manure hole and went over to Miss Farmers.

till I could not hold up my head. I guess if she had a few she would know that their mothers do not beat them on their heads.

I left Annabell Lee up there and slid down and went to the barn to look for a rope to pull Jubilee up, and just then my mother and ant both came, and when me and Jubilee heard them scream we skun out through the manure hole and went over to Miss Farmers and stayed there till near milking time and all at once my father came sailing in and drag me home by the ear.

I bet there ain't a fella in our bunch tuff enough to stand what I got. If I had known what I was going to get me and Jubilee would of run away from home, but there ain't any sense running away afterwards. I did not dast ast how they got Annabell Lee out, for fear I would get licked again. I went to bed early without being told.

Members of Marion Lodge, No. 402, and Canby Lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias, will meet at their respective halls Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock to attend the annual memorial services, in a body, at the Calvary Evangelical church. 113-3

Last Night's Fights.

Cleveland—Young Montreal outpointed Joe Lynch in ten rounds at 118 pounds.

At Milwaukee — Pinkey Mitchell won a newspaper decision over Irish Patsy Kline in ten rounds.

At Toledo—Joe Burman, Chicago bantamweight, won a newspaper decision over Roy Moore, St. Paul, in twelve rounds.

At Boston—Nate Siegel won a decision over Ted Kid Lewis in ten rounds.

Lynch Outpointed.

Cleveland, April 9.—Joe Lynch, world's bantamweight champion, saved his title, last night, but that was about all. Young Montreal, the doughty scrapper from Providence, Rhode Island, outfought his opponent in seven of the ten rounds decisively. Lynch had a shade in two and the other was even. But for the fact that Young Montreal must score a knockout, there would be, today, a new wearer of the title in the 118-pound class. The fight was one of the best seen in Cleveland for months.

Ad Club Address.

COUNTY SCHOOL DEBATE TITLE GOES TO AGOSTA

Following Forensic Clash with Prospect Last Night.

AGOSTA GETS SEVEN OUT OF EIGHT POINTS

Almost Unanimous That Immigration to United States Should Be Prohibited.

Agosta won the final contest in the county inter-high school debate Friday night by defeating Prospect on both sides of the question. Judges gave Agosta's negative team at Prospect a unanimous decision and the affirmative team, which debated at home, was given a two to one decision over Prospect's negative. By these decisions and the vote of the judges Agosta received a total of seven points, to only one for Prospect.

"Resolved, That foreign immigration should be prohibited by the United States government for a period of two years," was the question. Judges of the contest at Agosta were F. C. Gegenheimer and L. A. Webb, Marion, and A. M. Hill, of Ohio, Wesleyan university, Delaware. Judges at Prospect were J. B. Connor and R. A. Garvin, Marion, and A. M. Harnby, Carey.

Agosta debaters were: Affirmative, Gordon Southwick, Ruby Williams and John Click and Cecil Jones, alternate; negative, Edna Clements, Opal James and Esther Keller and Carlton Schmidt, alternate.

Prospect's representatives were: Affirmative, Perry Click, Lucile Cheney and Paul Smith and Robert Emery, alternate; negative, Ben Herbster, Stanford Ackley and Bert Thomas and Carl Thomas, alternate.

CITY IN BRIEF

Memorial Day Plans.—Plans for Memorial day were discussed at the regular meeting of Marion Camp No. 32, Spanish War veterans, Friday night. A smoker followed the meeting.

Operations at City Hospital.—The five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Strawser, of East Center street, underwent an operation this morning at the City hospital. The eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sloat, of Meeker, was operated on Friday for acute appendicitis at the City hospital.

Two Illegal Trainriders.—Charles and Harry Johnson, giving their home as Massillon, were arrested Friday night on a charge of illegal trainriding. When arraigned before Mayor T. E. Andrews this morning, they pleaded guilty and said they were going to Ft. Wayne to work at the barber trade. The mayor dismissed them, as they only had money enough to secure something to eat.

Forest Lawn Community Cclub.—The members of the Forest Lawn Community club met at the Forest Lawn school building, Friday evening, the attendance being quite large. During the evening a pleasing program was rendered. The Forest Lawn Presbyterian choir rendered several selections and Otto Kinney contributed a vocal solo. An illustrated talk and demonstration of a picture machine was given by a representative and Rev. J. B. Brice delivered an address. A social hour followed.

South Side Community Club.—Officers were elected at the regular meeting of the South Side community club Friday afternoon in the Pearl Street school building. Mrs. W. G. Lake was named president, Miss Elizabeth Dairy, vice president; Mrs. Howard Jacoby, secretary, and Mrs. Ray Miller, treasurer. A park board committee composed of Mrs. T. E. Reed, Mrs. Everett Morgan and Mrs. Howard Jacoby. It was decided to have a bake sale in connection with the rummage sale next Saturday. The program consisted of whistling by Ralph Roush and a community singing led by Mrs. George Gretzer. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Speaks on Philippines.—Sylvester Larkin, one of the instructors in the Harding High school, gave a splendid illustrated travelogue on the Philippines at the departmental school auditorium Friday evening, under the auspices of the Oak Street Community club. The attendance was quite good and about $40 was taken in, and the amount remaining after all expenses are met will be used in purchasing lantern slides for the Oak Street building. The lecture was greatly appreciated. Mr. Larkin speaking from personal experiences while he was in the islands during the Spanish-American war in 1898. He showed pictures and spoke on the manners, customs, industries and products of the islands.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowen returned Friday evening from a honeymoon trip to Buffalo and points of interest in the East.

Miss Jeanne Castner, of Preston; Miss Leila Weaver, of Plain City, and Miss Margaret McFate, of Pittsburgh, students at Wooster college, are passing the week end with Miss Mary Katherine Bell, of east Center street.

LOCAL MENTION

J. N. Court secured a building permit, Friday, for erecting a porch at his residence on Orchard street, the estimated cost being $150.

The Willing Workers, of the Bellefontaine avenue mission, held their regular meeting Friday afternoon with Miss Roxie Rex, of Uncapher avenue.

The relay race to have been staged this morning by the boys' division of the local and Bucyrus has been postponed indefinitely on account of the weather.

The Modern Book Bindery company, of Marion, has opened an office with the Commercial Printing & Supply company in the Liberty League block at Bucyrus.

Troop No. 2, Girl Scouts, met Friday evening at 4 o'clock at Trinity Baptist church. There was a good attendance. Plans were made for a candy sale next week for the benefit of the freshman basket-ball team.

Plans were discussed for the fifth annual field meet of the Marion county schools to be held May 14 at the fairground, at a meeting of the athletic committee of county schools held this morning in the office of County Superintendent W. R. Holstand.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Marion Automobile association will be held in the offices of the chamber of commerce Monday evening. Among other matters of business will be the naming of delegates to the convention of the Ohio State Automobile association Friday and Saturday, April 22 and 23.

NOTICE!

Have Your Lawnmower SHARPENED

By the Latest Up-to-Date Machinery

I LEAD AND OTHERS COPY

Make Mowing a Pleasure Instead of a Drudge.

Notice to people that live in the country: Take off the handle of mower and bring the mower to me. I will sharpen it while you are in town.

This is the machine that does it.

ALL REPAIRS DONE AT COST PRICE

It is a well known fact that owing to the peculiar shape of the blades it is next to impossible to sharpen a lawn mower with a file, and many first-class mowers have been ruined in the attempt.

Your mower, ground with this machine, will be sharp and stay sharp longer than the old style way which is usually done by inexperienced workmen with an emery wheel, file or emery dust, etc.

While the emery dust method is a cheap one it is not desirable. The clearance of the cutting blade is reduced, making more surface in contact with the lower bar. As the edges become dull, the mower has to be adjusted very closely, so that it TEARS the grass instead of SHEARING it, at the same time making it run harder than ever.

The next time your mower needs sharpening, Phone 6140 or 5111 and I will call for same and deliver it to you promptly, making it cut so nicely that it will surprise you.

Your money back if not satisfactory.

TRYING TO SOLVE A MURDER MYSTERY

Celina Police and County Officials Are Baffled.

Celina, April 9.—Police and county officials admitted themselves baffled, today, in their attempts to solve the murder of Miss Theresa Petro, pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of Oliver Petro, whose body was found in a marsh along the Mary river, yesterday.

Miss Petro had been missing from her home since early in January, but her death, in the opinion of physicians, had occurred but a few days ago. A nationwide search has been in progress since her disappearance.

She is said to have been last seen by friends when she accompanied a young man friend to Rockford. There the man declares she left him in front of the Presbyterian church.

Falls From Haymow.

LaRue, O., April 9.—[Special]—Marshall Burdge, seventy-five years old, fell from the haymow at his home here this morning, tearing loose the ligaments of his left leg and severely injuring the knee cap. He was removed to the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Allen, of this place.

Answering Call.

As the day wore on, more and more reservists filed the square in front of the war office and the embankment, in answer to the king's call for army and navy reserves.

All London presented the picture of a populace eagerly resolved to avert a national calamity, but the actual pressing into service of the reserves and emergency forces was looked forward to with grave forebodings because of the spirit of bitter defiance on the part of the triple alliance, whose nearly 5,000,000 members showed every determination to answer force with force.

The first arrest under the new powers of the government, which virtually amount to martial law authority, was that of Peter Chambers, a miners' agent at Dalkeith, who was charged with instigating a mob to stop pumping at one of the mines. A number of triple alliance leaders, including J. H. Thomas, the railmen's executive, Harry Gosling, president of the transport workers and some laborite members of parliament, had a conference with the premier and other ministers, early today, but the miners' federation was not represented.

As the spokesman of the powerful labor combine emerged from the premier's official residence, they were porters.

The gravest expression on their They proceeded to Unity hall for faces. All refused to talk to re another triple-alliance conference.

Paint Your House and Buildings

For one-half cent a square foot per coat. That is what you can do with our thrift paint—here is the story—an average size house is 24 by 30 feet and about 18 feet high. This gives you 1944 square feet of surface to be painted.

Three gallons of Thrift Paint, (any color), three and one-half gallons of pure linseed oil together with one-half gallon of turpentine will give you a two-coat job that can not be surpassed for a fine, high glossy finish at a cost of $17.91 or less than one cent per square foot for two coat work.

This same cost per square foot applies to any house, regardless of size, and you are getting the best material that money can buy.

"Let's put Mello-Gloss on the walls in every room"

The beauty, the washable and long-wearing properties of Lowe Brothers Mello-Gloss on kitchen and bathroom walls, have induced many home owners to use it throughout the house.

Mello-Gloss is a wall paint that dries with a beautiful satiny sheen; that can be wiped off as clean as a china plate, and just as easily.

Ordinary dirt, grease and even ink spots do not affect it. And it stands repeated washings.

Made in twelve tints called Rest-Tones. Come in and see the samples and ask for booklet.

Willys Knight Touring

The Willys-Knight
—and the Sleeve-Valve Motor

From the roughest road in the world to the smoothest road in the world—the Willys-Knight maintains supremacy. The quietness of the Knight has set new standards—with its coming, the public demanded better built motor cars. Springs, upholstery and other fittings were designed to complete the harmony of the structure. And the latest Willys-Knights are indeed models of comfort and luxury—proven on the highways of the old world and the new.

"IT IMPROVES WITH USE! IT ALWAYS RUNS; IT IS COMFORTABLE, AND IT IS ECONOMICAL."

The Willys-Knight motor improves with use. Long service merely increases its velvet flow of quiet power.

Its metal sleeves, one within the other, slide on a film of oil, noiselessly, without friction or wear, enduringly quiet.

The motor is simple, almost never requiring adjustment.

Not only is its delivered power great, with very economical fuel consumption, but its flexibility is remarkable.

The refinement of coach work in the car is in keeping with the extraordinary efficiency of the motor.

INEXPENSIVE GAS-SAVING DEVICES

The efforts of Federal, State and Economic authority and those of gas producing, transporting and distributing companies to conserve the supply of natural gas and prolong its use have brought manufacturers into the field with many new gas-saving appliances.

Range makers are designing their appliances to burn gas economically and increase efficiency and auxiliary apparatus for use when it is not necessary or desirable to employ a large range or cook stove in the preparation of one or two items of a modest meal.

New and improved designs of heaters are on the market and others are in process of production and will soon be available for purchase.

The thrifty householder will investigate the merits of improved and approved gas-burning appliances between this time and next winter season for the two-fold purpose of saving in the expense for gas and improving service by the most efficient possible use of it.

'TWILL BE CONDUCTED AT EPWORTH CHURCH

Rev. Fred Almendinger Invited To Deliver Commencement Sermon May 29.

Dr. Albert Edwin Smith, of Ada, president of Ohio Northern university and former pastor of Epworth M. E. church here, will deliver the annual commencement address to the graduating class of the Harding High school the evening of Friday, June 3. The commencement will be conducted at Epworth M. E. church.

This announcement was made today by the Harding High school commencement committee, which is made up of Members Robert J. Pennell, Earl T. Smart, G. E. McCormick and Martin A. Mickley, of the board of education, and K. H. Marshall, principal of the High school.

Rev. Fred Almendinger, a Lutheran minister residing in Marion, who has been active in Chautauqua work, has been invited to deliver the commencement sermon the evening of Sunday, May 28. The sermon in all probability will be delivered at Emanuel's Lutheran church on south Prospect street. Rev. Mr. Almendinger is the father of Fred Almendinger, Jr., a member of the senior class and editor of the Quiver.

The senior class play will be given Friday, May 27. It is possible that the class play will be given two nights. Trials are now being conducted for the cast under the supervision of Miss Lucile Foreman.

The graduating class this year will include more than 100, it is announced.

The annual meeting of the members of the Marion Building, Savings & Loan company will be held at the office of the company, 128 west Center street, on Tuesday, May 2, 1921, at 7 o'clock p. m., for the election of two directors and for such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

FARM WAGES DECLINE $54 TO $48 IN COUNTY

According to the State-Federal Crop Figures.

A TWENTY-THREE PER CENT. DECLINE IN OHIO

Prospects for a Better Than Average Wheat Crop in the State.

Prospects for a better than average wheat crop in Ohio are good for this year, according to the state-federal crop report of April 1. The condition of the crop on April 1 is reported as eighty-seven per cent. of normal, an increase of six per cent. since December 1. This compares with a ninety-one per cent. condition of wheat in the United States as a whole. The ten-year average condition for April 1 is eighty-four per cent. In 1915 an April 1 condition of eighty-seven per cent was followed by a crop of 40,000,000 bushels and the acreage for this year was reported last December to be materially higher than for the 1915 crop.

It appears that the damage to wheat from winter-killing will not exceed nine per cent. in Ohio. The heaviest damage from this cause seems to be in the Eastern and Northeastern parts of the state. Carroll county reports as high as thirty per cent. winter-killed and Cuyahoga reports twenty-three per cent. but in not more than a third of the counties is the damage greater than 10 per cent.

The state damage from Hessian fly is placed at five per cent. with practically all the counties reporting some damage but with the highest damage not much above 15 per cent.

Condition of Rye Improves.

The condition of rye in Ohio is reported at ninety-three per cent., an increase of six per cent. over the December report. This condition compared with ninety per cent. for the whole United States. Last year the Ohio April 1 condition was eighty-two per cent. and the ten-year average is eighty-seven per cent. The acreage reported last December was 81,000.

The number of breeding sows on Ohio farms April 1 is estimated from the reports to be ninety-five per cent. of the corresponding number last year, or a decline of five per cent. In the United States as a whole the decline was two per cent. The decline in Ohio compares with the larger decline of eight per cent. during the preceding year in Ohio, and ten per cent. for the United States, during the preceding year.

Farm Wages Decline.

Wages for farm hands average $40 a month and board, while a year ago $52 a month was paid, a decline of twenty-three per cent. The reports show that the total supply of farm labor is sixteen per cent. greater than last April, while the farm demand for labor is twelve per cent. less than a year ago.

In the majority of counties wages are between $38 and $42 a month with a range of from $29 in Brown and Highland counties to $54 in Perry county and $50 in Cuyahoga. The average for Franklin county is $40, the same as the state average. In general the greatest reduction in farm wages is apparent around the larger cities.

The supply of farm labor is reported less than last year in only eleven counties and these are for the most part not close to the larger cities. Portage and Trumbull counties report an increase of more than fifty per cent. and Scioto county reports an increase of seventy-seven per cent. in the supply of labor.

The further employment of machinery perhaps accounts for a part of this decline in the demand for labor on farms. A larger part is doubtless due to the prevalence of the feeling among many farmers of the state that present prices for farm products do not permit the employment of labor at present prices, even after the pronounced decline in wages of the last year. They feel that farm prices have declined more than farm wages and that a still further reduction in wages must take place before they can profitably employ labor. In the meantime they are trying to cut down their farming operations to a point where they can do most of the work themselves. The reports also indicate an attitude of unwillingness to hire men from the cities because such labor is considered to be unskilled in farm work.

The detailed figures of Marion county follow: Condition of wheat, eighty-one per cent; percentage of winter-killed wheat, eighteen; percentage of wheat damaged by the Hessian fly, six; condition of rye, ninety-nine per cent, supply of farm labor at current rate of wages, 104 per cent; demand at current rate of wages, ninety-one per cent; wages, 1920, $54; wages, 1921, $40.

SUMMER TRAINING CAMPS THIS YEAR

Dr. James Wilson McMurray Is in Receipt of Notice.

Dr James W McMurray has received notice from the Military Training Camps association that the summer training camps will be conducted for a four-weeks' period beginning the latter part of July.

These camps are known as the Citizens' Military Training camps and two are to be conducted for men from the states of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia in the Fifth Corps area, one at Camp Knox, Kentucky and the other at Camp Sherman.

Young men from sixteen to thirty-five years of good character, intelligence and physical condition are eligible to attend and all their expenses will be borne by the government.

A national convention of all branch chairmen and members of the association is to be held in Chicago May 20 when plans for recruiting for the camps this year and the future policy and work of the association will be discussed

How Halloran Made Good

By HAZEL SMITH

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

The first loud clang of the alarm had hardly ceased to echo through the quarters of the sleeping firemen when Halloran had sprung to his feet, his eyes still closed with sleep, found the thick pole and slid down to the stable, first of his companions. It was not his first fire, but it was his first big one. Everybody knew that it was a big one. Why, a whole block of tenements was burning on the East side!

He was at his post upon the car now, holding on grimly as the vehicle swung from side to side.

Halloran's mind went working back during that wild journey. He had been a fireman only six weeks. He was an ex-convict. Nobody knew that—nobody except Chief Porter. And Porter had believed in him and had kept his secret faithfully. After three years in Sing Sing for a crime that should, at most, have merited a short period of detention in Elmira reformatory, Halloran had been embittered against society. And Porter had found him and plucked him out of the mud and given him his post. Porter believed in him.

But Eileen, his young wife, did not. They had been married only three months when he had stolen a purse, to give her those little comforts which she needed so badly. When he came out to freedom Eileen was gone. Her friends could not be found. Her family had dispersed. There was no trace of her.

Then Porter had found Halloran and picked him out of the mud and made a fireman of him. Some day he would show Porter that he was worthy of his confidence.

The wild journey was ended in front of a block of frames that sent up columns of smoke and spouted fire. All the occupants of the tenements had been removed or fled to safety.

No! Suddenly a cry went up from the multitudes. Far up on the seventh story a child was leaning out of the window, uttering a feeble cry. A little brown-haired slip of a girl, with outstretched arms and clinging night robe, crying in terror as the coiling smoke surged round her. Ladders had been run up. "Too short!" shouted a man. That was all Halloran knew. He was already upon the lowest part of the ladder and climbing steadily.

The child still hung in the midst of the coiling smoke wreaths and he was at the top of the ladder, and a full two stories beneath her.

He poised himself and sprang and caught the sill of the window of the fifth story; caught it and hung there. Then he drew himself up, stood on the sill for an instant, and plunged into the hell within.

Two minutes later a gasp went up from the watchers as they saw a staggering, smoke-blackened figure appear at the window of the seventh story and drag the child upon the sill. It was Halloran. Angry tongues of fire darted out at him, licked at his clothes, greedy for their prey.

Halloran clung to the sill and looked down. The crowd was shouting to him not to jump.

Slowly a ladder upreared itself until it reached the sill. Halloran felt for it through a cloud of flame-tipped smoke in which whirled fiery, stinging sparks, clung to it with his feet, perched himself upon that swaying thing and thrust the child into the arms of the steel-helmeted man who clambered up to him. And then, when she had passed downward along the line, Halloran collapsed into his rescuer's arms.

At the foot of the ladder was a woman who had broken through the police lines. So tense was her face with anguish that they had suffered her to pass; and now she clasped the child to her breast and laughed and crooned over it, oblivious of all else. The child was scatheless. Not a hair had been burned. Halloran's thick coat, scorched to a crisp, bore witness to that. And Halloran, a fire-blackened ruin, with burned-off hair and singed eyebrows and hands that rested limply in the surgeon's bandages, opened his eyes to find the woman kneeling over him.

"He'll do well now," exclaimed the police surgeon.

"Sure he will!" cried the voice of Porter, the fire chief, and in his tones was something that set Halloran's doubts at rest for ever.

But it was not of Porter that he thought that moment. The burned eyes opened widely, staring into the face of the woman at his side. And he whispered:

"Eileen!"

She knew him—had known him. She crouched lower beside him and laid her head upon his breast, her tears falling on his face like rain.

"Tom!" she whispered. "She's ours—your child and mine. And we shall be waiting for you, Tom dear, to make a new home for all our lives."

Big Collection of Names.

Among the archives of the city of Los Angeles are about one dozen volumes weighing a couple of hundred pounds each. They are filled with nothing but names. Los Angeles claims to have a greater number of visitors than any of the other cities of the state and is collecting these volumes to prove the assertion. These books are filled with the names of visitors. Each book has 400 pages and there are more than 1,000,000 names in each.

No Legal Grounds.

After hearing the evidence in the divorce case of Elida Wynn against Andrew J. Wynn, Judge Grant B. Houser late Friday afternoon denied the plaintiff a divorce and dismissed the petition on the ground that the plaintiff had no legal ground for divorce.

The Scenario Lover

By WILLIAM FALL

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

As Jack crossed the office on his way to his desk, his eyes dwelt tenderly on Madge's nimble fingers as they traced what he felt sure was a note to him. Thinking to surprise her, he drew nearer, and suddenly the large writing on the sheet seemed to rise up and assail his eyes. With hurt horror he read:

"Dearest Ted: Of course I love you. Why doubt me? As long as I live, I'm yours."

He waited to read no further, but fled to the stockroom, where hidden behind the bales and boxes, he fought out his trouble and decided upon a course of action.

"My little Madge, whom I trusted with my whole soul," he groaned. Her falseness seemed impossible.

Who this fellow Ted was he did not know. It was enough that the girl he loved, and who had promised to marry him, was writing such a letter to another man.

At last he clenched his hands, and setting his teeth, went into the private office of the manager. Six weeks ago, he had been offered a position on the road, one that would pay him a much better salary, and had refused, not wanting to leave Madge. Now he was glad to go, and immediately, too. Within two hours of his reading the beginning of that fateful note, he was on the train to take up the work of one of the commercial travelers who had suddenly been taken sick.

Jack did not stop to say good-by to Madge, nor did he write her, for he felt that the less said the better.

"Perhaps if I get away this hurt will stop," he told himself; but although he kept busy and in his labors turned night into day, sending back so much business that the firm believed they had secured the model salesman, he could not forget Madge or her thousand and one appealing ways. It was all the harder because she kept on writing to him, in the same clear, flowing hand that had penned the fateful confession of her love for another, begging him to let her know the reason for his continued silence.

Tom, his chum, wrote him that Madge looked ill.

Things looked black to him, although he had made such a success in a business way that the office sent for him to come home and make a contract with the firm, and although he would have rather remained away forever, Jack obeyed, and once more found himself in the same city with Madge.

Being a salesman now, he managed to have his interview with the manager without going out among his old associates, and so avoided Madge although a sight of her sunny hair through the open doorway turned him sick at heart.

His business outlook was extremely bright, much better than he had dared to dream of for years to come, and yet it was a very heavy heart that he carried with him into the little motion picture theater, where he sought a few moments of relaxation later on in the evening.

Wearily he made his way to the corner seat in the box where they had always sat.

Listlessly he followed the story of the film. There was the usual quarrel between two loves, although he reflected bitterly that neither had his cause. Suddenly he straightened up. The lover received a letter from the girl with whom he had quarreled, and it was photographed on the film.

"Dearest Ted: Of course I love you. Why doubt me? As long as I live, I'm yours."

As on a former occasion, Jack stopped to read no further. He recognized the clear, flowing hand. It was Madge's penmanship, that he knew, but he also understood that it was never written to a living person. The thought flamed through him that there must be some heart-healing explanation. Realizing how his cruelty must have hurt her, he turned to leave, when in the seat by his side where she had sat so often was—Madge.

Instinctively his hand reached for hers, and in the tender pressure given and returned everything was forgotten and forgiven.

"I saw you here," she whispered, "and came here to sit by you."

"Darling! How, though, did they get that letter? I saw you write it," he confessed, "though not intentionally."

"I wrote the scenario of the photoplay," she said with proper pride. They forgot the audience, sitting there together again in the happiness of their love, and he bent over and whispered:

"We'll be married tomorrow so you can go out on the road with me." Madge nodded happily. "Of course, for as long as I live, I'm yours," she murmured, and this time the words carried a joyous message to him.

Proceeding With Caution.

"Did you win any votes by your speeches?"

"Out my way," replied Senator Sorghum, "we didn't have to bother about winning votes. All we had to do was to avoid saying anything that might make folks change their minds."

A Tactful Wife.

"She's very tactful, isn't she?"

"Very. She even makes the wives of her husband's business friends feel that she really cares for them."

Convicted of Murder.

Herkimer, New York, April 9.—Rutger Warder was convicted of the murder of Henry Werner. The jury was out nine hours. The district attorney will move to set April 22 as the date for the trial of Mrs. Jennie Werner, the dead man's wife and her mother, as accomplices.

The New Sultan Of Turkey

Sultan Ahmed Fuad Pasha, who succeeded his brother as ruler of Egypt, is said to be very popular with his people. He is the second Sultan to occupy the throne since the British Protectorate was declared on December 15, 1914, and the former Khedive deposed. Previous to that time the Khedive ruled. The titled Sultan being a new one created by the British to appeal to the National spirit of the Egyptians.

Nothing succeeds like the office holders' successor.

"THOUGHTLESS WOMEN"

A DIFFERENT KIND OF PICTURE! A drama so tense, powerful and realistic that it may not be forgotten. Read the following extracts from an editorial in the MOVING PICTURE WORLD:

"IT is new and it is vastly different because it is the sort of picture the real critics have been crazy for. Incidentally it is intelligent, it has brains in it and it tells a simple and direct story in a simple and direct way. * * * 'Thoughtless Women' takes its place among the great things of the screen, even though some of the smaller minds may mistake its simplicity for insignificance."

Why Should Spirit of Mortal Be Proud Anyhow?

Remember when—

You had just enough money to buy a new spring suit after putting through the winter with your old suit and overcoat that you thought never would last till spring?

Then, after some real nice warm April weather, it turned chilly, and you were all out of luck, remember eh? Besides you had planned to go out of town for a day and, in-fern-it-all, that was the day it turned cold. Now, wouldn't that jar 'most any one?

Well, did that ever happen to you, or, more precisely, any one of you dear readers?

And, according to the weatherman joy-killer, the worst is yet to come. Yeh, it's to be quite cold, tomorrow, this self-same weatherman joy-annihilator asserts and asserts emphatically.

But warm weather is on the way—"somewhere."

...nce of Preventive
By Ring W. Lardner

...—Every once and a ... expert comes out ... this country had of ... war before we got ... the death of the war ... shortened by a yr. at ... sooner. Along the ... dents of finance and ... giveing their opinion ... of had so many ... and loss of money and ... of had their eyes ... ready for what was ... upon after the war.

... I guess they's no question about the value of preparedness whether it's in war or money matters or what not and nobody will doubt the truth of the old sore, "a warned is a armed," and the same thing applys to helth like everything else. So for that reason I am going to run the risk of being wrote down as a kill joy and tell my readers what the experts on helth is going around here, namely that the coming summer of 1921 will see a record crop of epidemics and sickness in some parts of the U. S. and Canada and the sooner the public wakes up and looks the facts in the face, why it won't be near as bad as if it comes like a surprise.

I suppose my readers will laugh at this prophesy and ask have I went crazy and where do I get that stuff and etc. Well friends I am not crazy and I wished I was at liberty to tell you where I got a hold of this information, but sufficient to say that the writer is not one of the kind that make predictions without knowing where they speak of and I would certainly be a fine bum to know what I know and not tell my readers and admires so as they can get ready for the biggest carnival of disease this country has seen since the hoof and mouth escapade.

The last named was a novelty when the cows first sprang it and the comeing epidemic will also introduce 1 or 2 ailments that hasn't never been heard of before which makes them all the harder to fight. Luckily the leading doctors is of the opinion that very few of them will be fatal. But they will take a long time to cure unless they are tended to in time and for that reason I am going to give a list of a few of them and symptoms of same and the treatments which the doctors has worked out.

Il of a sudden they was a series of terrible explosions and glass flied in every direction.

German Measles

This is a new disease under a old name. The patient breaks out with a thirst in place of a rush. The gen. symptoms is a dry throat and a parch tongue, which water don't seem to do no good wile grape juice, birch beer and etc. make them even sicker. In advance stages the tongue hangs out. Remedy—Aromatic spts. & malt. Dose—1 seidel after every pretzel.

Chronic Drought

Symptoms—The tongue hangs out and they's a sensation of dryness in the throat which water don't seem to do no good. Remedy—Six per cent solution of barley, 1 stein after every pretzel.

Ossos of the Liver.

Symptoms—The tongue hangs out and the very word water brings on nausea. Remedy—Sweet spts. of hops, and eat plenty of liverwurst.

Falling Arches

Symptoms—The tongue hangs out and the patient don't like to dance. Remedy—Sweet spts. of wurzburger to be drunk in a setting posture.

Chronic Hangnail

Symptoms—The tongue and the nail both hang out. Remedy—Sweet spts. of pilsener.

Chronic Baldness.

Symptoms—The tongue hangs out and the patient can't use a comb. Remedy—Shampoo with the foam and take balance internally.

These is a few of the expected ailments together with remedys for same but patients is advised to get their prescription filled at a reliable druggist and not try no home made remedys which I know of a case right here on Long Island where an experiment of this kind not only pretty near killed the patient but the rest of the family.

The head of the house had been suffering a long wile with chronic drought and falling arches and beer was prescribed and the Mrs. got a hold of a recipe some place and made a doz. bottles only she has lived all her life on the theory that 2 qts. makes a gallon so she didn't only put in ½ as much water as the recipe called for so one day wile the medicine was parked in the pantry getting seasoned, why we all set down to supper and next thing you know they was a series of terrible explosions and glass flied in every direction and the walls looked like they'd been out all night in a storm and I finely snuck up on the only bottle that hadn't went bloole and opened it up and tasted it and ever since then when I taste quinine I think its ice cream.

The patient breaks out with a thirst instead of a rash.

So don't try to cure yourself with no home brew because in a little wile the drug stores will be all set to take care of you and I notice that some of them in N. Y. city has all ready changed their names from "Riverside Pharmacy" and etc. to "Jack's Place," and where they use to hang out a big shaeving mug they have stuck up a stein, and the most of them has put in swinging doors and curtains and more mirrors and a brass rail in front of the prescription desk and reearpeted the flr with saw dust, and all of them is advertiseing for drug clerks named Gus and Eddie.

And I hear that a N. Y. physician named Dr. Dorgan has broke ground right here on Long Island for a Hospital for beer cases only and its right acrost the st. from a druggist with a capacity of 10,000 bbls. a day. The Hopsital will be named the Palmer House after the best atty. gen. we ever had and the nurses will all wear white aprons and the internes will visit the different wards every midnight and undress all the patients that seems to of been absent minded when they went to bed. A daily suds bath will be part of the treatmunt.

So much for treatmunt and etc. but they's another old saying that 1 oz. of prevention is worth a pt. of cure so I might say to those of my readers that wants to avoid these diseases, don't take no exercise and don't eat nothing salty. Personly I am beginning to feel kind of sick myself and I am afraid the old trouble is comeing back. Well I always say a man must take the bitter with the sweet in this life and perpaly I prefer the bitter.

Hints for the Motorist
By Albert L. Clough, Editor Motor Service, Review of Reviews

Fuel Economy Vs. Maximum Power
Both Cannot Be Enjoyed At Once

WITH FUEL PRICES high and still rising, there is a marked desire manifested by motorists to economize on fuel and, in this connection, there is one fact that ought generally to be realized, but is not. It is this, that a high degree of fuel economy is incompatible with maximum car performance. They cannot both be secured at once, and the individual motorist must determine which is the more desirable. The quality of the mixture furnished by the carburetor is the chief determining factor as between fuel efficiency and maximum power development. Careful tests indicate that the fuel mixture resulting in the greatest engine power (torque at any given speed), and hence in the best general performance in respect to hill climbing ability and rapidity of acceleration is in the vicinity of 25 per cent richer than the mixture giving the maximum mileage per gallon of gasoline. In other words, the motorist who adjusts his carburetor for the utmost attainable engine power, uses a quarter more gasoline than the one who sets his carburetor for economy—assuming that both drive identical cars. As a matter of fact, the former may use much more than a quarter more gasoline for the following reasons: The tendency is for a motorist or the mechanic whom he employs to adjust the carburetor so as to secure the easiest starting, the shortest period of warming up, the quickest "getaway" and the best power on hills and all these require a mixture that is greatly overrich, from the standpoint of economy. Furthermore, the mixture may be materially overrich without fouling spark-plugs, producing noticeable overheating or any disadvantageous results upon performance and thus such mixtures are quite generally used, while over-weak ones with their obvious failings are not tolerated. Moreover the average motorist is unwilling to make use of dashboard mixture-controlling devices and prefers a carburetor setting which, although wasteful, gives "snappy" engine action under nearly all conditions and need not be changed to secure satisfactory operation. The moral of all this is obvious. If economy is the quality desired, the mixture regularly used must be leaner than that required to give maximum power, and some additional gear shifting and lowered acceleration must be tolerated. If all existing cars should be run on such a mixture rather than on a "strong" or overrich one, the present fuel situation would become much less acute.

GASOLINE IMPROVING FORMULA

J. M. writes: Do you know of anything that can be put into gasoline to give it more mileage and power? I have been recommended to use 1 oz. of the following mixture to half gals. of gasoline: One part ether, acetone and turpentine. Would you recommend me to do so?

Answer: We know of nothing that can be made use of to obtain these results. You might as well try this mixture out on your own car, but the proportion added is so small that we hardly believe that you will notice it there by any effects upon the running of the engine. A proper proportion of ether makes starting in very cold weather and may reduce a somewhat cleaner exhaust. We have never before heard of using acetone in a fuel improver, but it is a common constituent of decarbonizing liquids and may have some effect in keeping down the carbon. We do not know if it mixes with gasoline. Unless it does you should carefully care to use it. The object of the turpentine is not apparent. It is very heavy in carbon and not very volatile. If these recommended liquids will mix, we should advise to try the "dope".

DECARBONIZATION METHODS

A. M. G. asks: Do you recommend the use of carbon removing liquids? How many miles ought a car to run between decarbonizations? It usually costs from $5 to $7 to have carbon taken out at a repair shop. Do you know any way in which part of this expense can be avoided? Until very recently, the only thing that I did for carbon was to treat the cylinders with carbon remover, but how the shop men discourage me as to using it.

Answer: A good liquid decarbonizer is a perfectly safe proposition, if it is not allowed to affect the crankcase oil and if the pistons are oiled before the engine is started. Our experience is that these liquids are pretty effective temporarily, but scraping or burning out are the only really thorough methods. If one can "get by" on liquid decarbonization only, it is so much to his financial advantage. Speaking generally, under existing fuel conditions, a high-compression engine is likely to need decarbonization every 1,000 or 1,500 miles, but engines with lower compression will run considerably longer. Some outlay can be prevented by using the burning out process instead of scraping.

Questions of general interest to motorists will be answered in this department as space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Albert L. Clough, care of our office.

B. A. DURKEE DIES AT MT. GILEAD HOME

News from Mt. Gilead and Country Round About.

Mt. Gilead, O., April 9.—(Special.)—B. A. Durkee, aged sixty years, died Sunday at his home after an illness of over a year. Mr. Durkee came to Mt. Gilead thirteen years ago where he was a cashier of one of the banks for years and took up contract work. He built mausoleums at River Cliff cemetery, Cardington and Ashley. He was a member of the Masonic lodge and M. E. church. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Hallie, Mrs. Fay Chipp and Thelma, of Mt. Gilead; two sons, Hayes of Mt. Vernon and Carl of St. Louis. One brother resides in Columbus and a sister, Jennie of Mt. Gilead. The funeral services were held from the home Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Collier. Burial was made in the mausoleum at River Cliff cemetery.

Mrs Robert Fulton, aged seventy-five years, died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. S. Hartpence, following a paralytic stroke. Mrs. Fulton was a member of the Baptist church. She is survived by six children, Mrs. E. S. Hartpence, Mrs. Crawford, Charley, William and Austin Fulton, of Mt. Gilead and Ralph, of Urbana. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Miller and burial was made in River Cliff cemetery.

Charles Rule, aged forty-one years, died at his home Thursday after a long illness. He is survived by his widow and two children, Dale and Hugh and a number of brothers and sisters. Services were held at the Shauck U. B. church. Burial was made at Shauck cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Ryan.

Mrs. John Bly entertained the J. W. McMullin Sunday-school class Friday afternoon.

The Toquet card club was entertained Tuesday evening at the club rooms by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Matthews. Mr. and Mrs. Don White and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Buckmaster.

Monday evening after the dance and reception at the Masonic Temple, Mrs. Ella Whitney gave a birthday party honoring the grand master of Ohio, John Platzer, of Dayton. April 4 was his fiftieth birthday.

An alcohol that can be used for all purposes except in medicines is being made on a commercial scale in New Jersey from the gases arising from the cracking processes in refining crude petroleum.

What Makes Ray Prices Possible?

We are continually being asked how the RAY Battery can sell at such a low price when in bona fide tests it has proved itself so superior to batteries of much higher price.
Here is the reason: RAY Batteries are the only batteries incorporating the famous "Lavier Formula plates." These plates are so tough that they will not wash down, so porous that the RAY battery is the most efficient battery known, and yet, due to manufacturing processes, scientific minimizing of overhead manufacturing expense and sensible merchandising can be put into a battery which costs less money.

The RAY is better but costs less, and it is guaranteed unconditionally for two years—the broadest guarantee ever offered.

THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"He that parts the fray goes away with the blows."

High prices remind one of skyrockets. The way they come down is so different.

Henry Ford's company reports assets of nearly $400,000,000. We were about to observe that "mighty oaks from little acorns grow," but refrain, not having anything against the acorn.

Even Mexico, it is apparent, will not stand for American draft evaders and Bolsheviki. There's no getting away from the fact that one's respect for Mexico is picking up.

The members of the league of nations must at times feel a bit like the man who realizes that he is putting out good money after bad.

It's just a bit suspicious that the fellows who are talking about disarmament at this time will be found to be, in the main, the same who yelled the loudest against arming after entering the war.

By this time, even former Emperor Charles must realize that he's not the proper medicine for what's ailing Hungary.

We might take to Colonel Bryan's immortal ratio, provided it stood for sixteen homes to one garage, but the chances are that it wouldn't be any more popular generally than back in 1896.

It's not so surprising that the Ford company assets are practically $400,000,000, considering that it secured its publicity free of cost.

There is no occasion for getting too gay over the turning-down of Charles by the Hungary. He may have to break into the movies to gain a livelihood. Of late, that appears to be the last resort.

A man advertising in a trade paper for a job as a reporter, lets drop the information that he is also a poet, but doesn't state whether real or self-assumed.

Apropos of the strike of the British coal miners, it may be said that there is a world of difference between striking and flooding the mines. The latter is a direct assult on the tenets of government and civilization.

Professor Einstein would be hailed as a public benefactor were he able to convince the people prone to drop in and visit with the busy man that time as well as space is limited.

What's hard for the young man who feels a call to carry along a box of candy every time he goes to see his best girl to understand is when we are going to get sweets made from that seven-cent sugar on the market some weeks ago.

BUYING RAILROAD STOCKS.

The curious fact is announced that the number of owners of railroad stocks has increased materially in this country in the last six months, despite the inability of many roads to make dividends and the steady falling-off in earnings.

On the face of it, American investors might appear to be using poor judgment. In reality, however, this willingness to put money into railroad securities under present conditions is an indication that those who buy shares or bonds at present low figures are keen students of the markets and are putting in their cash with their eyes fully open.

These new owners of railroad stocks are merely "betting on America," a sure-thing wager that has netted many a fortune. They feel absolutely certain that good times are to follow bad; that the railroad tangle will be unsnarled and, they are gambling on a rapid rise in "rails."

The only uncertainties are when the turn will come and when the bottom will be reached in stock prices. But the man who buys standard railroad shares at this time and tucks them away feels that he is reasonably sure of a fair return on his money, if he has the patience to wait a few months.

It's betting without gambling, because the better is taking no chances.

Sketches from Life . . By Temple

(9 P. M.) Good Night!

TO IMPROVE MAIL SERVICE.

Postmaster General Hays and postmasters from seven of the largest cities of the United States compared notes in Washington recently and made suggestions for the improvement of the postal service. Mr. Hays assured the postmasters that his department would do all it could to bring about changes for the betterment of the service.

Mr. Hays suggested organization of a "red service" as a super-special delivery, guaranteeing special dispatch of all mail from the time it was placed in the postoffice until delivered to its destination. Such delivery would apply to all first-class matter, and if it is made operative will be greatly welcomed.

The handicap of a lack of help, experienced during the war, appears to be disappearing, and the prompt handling of mail matter is more nearly realized than it has been for a number of years. The slackness in industry should have the effect of causing many trained mail workers to return to the postal service.

A new branch of the postoffice department may be organized for the purpose of taking over the delivery systems of large mercantile establishments, experiments made in a number of cities having apparently demonstrated the feasibility of the plan. The system would probably be less expensive than the delivery maintained by the larger stores, and it would add to the revenues of the government.

The public will welcome any practical changes which Mr. Hays may make for the improvement of the postal service. The prompt delivery of mail has much to do with the successful management of business of all kinds, and it also has a good effect in maintaining the morale of the people, to whom the government is represented intimately in the postal service.

The outside world may not take kindly to Secretary Hughes' brand of diplomacy, but his clear phrasecology is certainly appreciated here at home. The very novelty of it is strong in its appeal.

Mr. Ford may not be a wolf on history, but he's enough of a student of human nature to realize that the best way to engender a demand for a thing with some people is to deny them it; hence he doubtless smiles as city after city bars the selling of his Dearborn Independent on its streets.

Great Britain blew in over two and a quarter billions for booze last year, and yet her workers do not appear to be wholly satisfied. There are times when we can not escape the thought that Mr. Gompers' theory about booze as an agent for labor content has sprung an eccentric, or something like that.

BETWEEN SKY AND SEA.

A lordly battle of the sky and sea is to be staged by the United States army and navy in June. All types of aeroplanes and balloons, including many Martin bombers, will be assembled at Langley Field, Virginia, and will set upon a warship.

Those who contend that the battleship is still the bulwark of our first line defenses and those who think aircraft has been sufficiently perfected to justify the consignment of all the superdreadnaughts to the junkheap, will have here the practical test and combat of their theories.

It is reminiful of the days of the Monitor, and her classic encounter with the Merrimac. From wood to iron to steel has been a process of evolution in shipbuilding, all within sixty years, that has changed the entire course of navigation. If the time is coming when winged ships will carry the world's careers above the seas, not on their surface, it is well to herald the development and to prepare for it.

Certainly no warlike attitude need be seen in the determination of the army and navy to make sea-bombing a thorough, accurate try-out. Every one wants them to keep abreast of the times, on land, on sea and in the air.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By James Hall Naylor]

COURTING AND PROPOSING.

You prosy and commonplace husbands of today, do you remember when you were the poetical and gay Lotharios of yesterday?

Do you blush now when you recall how you wrote sonnets to your sweetheart's eyebrows? Do you deprecatingly shake your heads when you think of the many things you said and the many things you did—things which you consider rather silly today?

Yet you were happy—happier than you'll ever be again; and miserable—more miserable than you'll probably ever be again.

Do you remember the first time you accompanied HER home from church or party?

You trod on air; you breathed incense.

An do you remember, too, the first time you called upon her at her home?

Do you recall how you trembled in the presence of her mother?

And you also turned tail and fled when her father gruffly greeted you?

And then that first meal you ate at her home!

You couldn't remember an hour afterward what you had eaten.

And, above all, do you remember when you proposed to her?

Really she did the proposing; but you didn't know it.

You thought you were springing a surprise on her; yet all the while she knew you were going to propose that very evening—if she could induce and encourage you to do so.

You hemmed—you hawed; you stammered—you stuttered; you shivered—you sweat.

Oh, well it's all safely and satisfactorily over today; but here's a little anecdote that will recall it to you.

"Maggie," said Jock, who had decided to propose, "wasna I here on Sawbath nicht?"

"Aye, Jock, I dare say ye were."

"And wasna I here on Monday nicht?"

"Aye, so ye were."

"And I was here on Tuesday nicht."

"Aye, ye did happen here on Tuesday nicht."

"And I was here on Wednesday nicht."

"Aye, so ye were, Jock—so ye were."

"And I was here on Thursday nicht."

"I'll no deny that ye were, Jock."

"And I was here on Friday nicht."

"Aye, I'm thinking that's so."

"And this is Saturday nicht—and I'm here again."

"Weel, what for now? Ye are verra welcome."

"Maggie!"—desperately—"D'ye no' begin to smell a rat?"

THE CONVENTION OF GROUCHES.

The natural grouches were holding a convention.

Not all of them were there; but many of them were there.

"I'm up against it," dismally remarked the wall paper.

"Cut it out!" rasped the scissors.

"I've lost my job," muttered the table-fork.

"I can only knock," chuckled the hammer.

"They trample me under foot," grumbled the rug.

"They've kicked me out," complained the football.

"I'm busted," sighed the toy balloon.

"And I'm down at the heel," seconded the slipper.

"I've lost my grip," murmured the pincers.

"And I've no punch left," paled the awl.

"I have a kick coming," yelped the house dog.

"Everything's gone crooked with me," sobbed the corkscrew.

"I'm laid out flat," ventured the sheet of paper.

"Well, everything's all write with me," laughed the fountain pen.

And then the gas flared up vowed it couldn't throw any light on the subject—and went out.

So the convention adjourned—as conventions have the habit of doing.

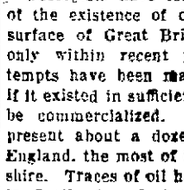
Traces of oil have been found in Scotland and American experts have been sent for to conduct a practical investigation to ascertain if the product can be found in sufficient quantities to pay.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

III.—NEW JERSEY



NEW JERSEY became the third state just six days after Pennsylvania had fortunally adopted the Constitution. This territory, which covers 8,224 square miles, originally was a part of the province of New Netherlands. In 1664, after the English conquest of New Netherlands, the duke of York sold the southern portion to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret. The latter had won some distinction as governor of the little island of Jersey in the English channel, and it was in his honor that the new province came to be called New Jersey. The eastern portion, that about Newark, was settled by Carteret and the territory to the southwest, where Burlington and Trenton now stand, fell to Berkeley. After a few years Berkeley sold his share to a party of Quakers and two distinct provinces were formed, called East and West Jersey. They were reunited, however, in 1702, and became a single province under the direct rule of the English crown.

New Jersey casts fourteen electoral votes for president.

STAINED SHINGLES

Quality of shingles. Each shingle is sawed from selected cedar logs—not from forest waste; all parallel widths—no wedge shapes; thoroughly seasoned—not baked to death in dry kilns. Better shingles are not to be found in any market.

Quality of stain. Each shingle is thoroughly stained by a special factory process. Pure pigments are ground twice in pure linseed oil and carried deep in the fibre of the wood with creosote oil. The result is preservation of wood as well as soft-toned colors that do not fade or wash out in streaks.

They cost less than staining on the job.

Safe Electrical Work

A great deal of unsafe, unsatisfactory electrical work is being done in Marion. We do safe work.
We were the first to advocate inspection. The following letter which we drafted and submitted to council April 4th, 1919, explains our stand:

Marion, Ohio, April 4th, 1919.
To the councilmen of the city of Marion, of Marion County, of the State of Ohio:
The electrical contractors of Marion, Ohio, who have signed this proposal, feel as though it is necessary and important that the city of Marion should have a man appointed by the council of Marion to inspect all electrical wiring, as we feel that it is very necessary that all electrical wiring be done in accordance with the state code, we also recommend that this man who is appointed for this work shall have his office with the fire chief of Marion Ohio, and also recommend that he work under the above named fire chief. We feel that Marion is very much in need of an office of this kind. We, the undersigned electrical contractors, are willing to abide by whatever you deem necessary to insert in this ordinance.

If we do your work you can feel that it is absolutely safe. We guarantee it.

BE SAFE—NOT SORRY.

"Millions Now Living will Never Die"

—Judge Rutherford

In a free lecture at the Armory, corner Olney Ave. and Church St., Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, it will be conclusively proved by many Biblical prophecies, which have been fulfilled during the past four years, and from many others still in course of fulfillment, that thousands now living in Marion and vicinity will never die.

The scriptures abound in time prophecies indicating when such events as have distressed mankind during the past few years, and the opportunity for profiteering in all its phases forever ends.

The divine law is inexorable and every inspired revelation of the divine purpose respecting the affairs of the old world, over which Jehovah, for a special purpose, tolerated Satan to rule, has been fulfilled exactly on time, and the time for the binding of Satan is at hand.

Every Bible scholar is aware, whether it is now or one hundred years hence, that mankind will sometime arrive at the end of Satan's reign, when everlasting life on this earth can be his blessed portion, instead of death and the tomb, as has been the case under Satan's six thousand years of evil domination and delusion.

The purpose of this free lecture is to furnish every inquirer positive Biblical proof and secular evidence, based on prophecies fulfilled during the past five years that we will within the next five years enter this long hoped for period, when families will be reunited and live happily on earth ever after.

If you are interested in this vital subject and desire proof of the proclamation that millions now living will never die, you are cordially invited to hear

ORDINANCE NO. 1334.

Determining to proceed with the improvement of Vernon Heights Boulevard from Mt. Vernon Avenue to the south end of Vernon Heights First Addition, in the City of Marion, Ohio, by constructing a sandstone sidewalk on both sides thereof.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Marion, and State of Ohio, three-fourths of all the members elected thereto concurring:

Section 1—That it is hereby determined by the Council of the City of Marion, Ohio, to proceed with the improvement of Vernon Heights Boulevard from Mt. Vernon Avenue to the south end of Vernon Heights First Addition, in the City of Marion, Ohio, by construction a sandstone sidewalk on both sides thereof, in accordance with resolution No. 1295 passed February 14, 1921, and in accordance with the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles prepared by the City Engineer and now on file in the office of the Director of Public Service, which plans, specifications, estimates and profiles were heretofore approved.

Section 2—That all claims for damages resulting therefrom shall be judicially inquired into after the completion of the proposed improvement.

Section 3—That the whole cost of said improvement less one fifth thereof and the cost of intersections shall be assessed by the foot front upon the following described lots and lands, to-wit—All lots and lands bounding and abutting upon the proposed improvement, which said lots and lands are hereby determined to be especially benefited by said improvement, that the cost of said improvement shall include the expenses of preliminary and other surveys and the printing and publishing of the necessary resolutions and ordinances required, the service of notices together with the interest on bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of the deferred installments of assessments and all other necessary expenses.

Section 4—That the assessments so to be levied shall be paid in ten annual payments with interest upon deferred payments at not to exceed six per cent. per annum, provided that the owner of any property assessed may at his option pay such assessment in cash or any number of installments thereof, at any time within thirty days after the passage of the assessing ordinance with interest to the next semi-annual interest day of said bonds next following the day of payment.

Section 5—That bonds or notes of the City of Marion, Ohio, shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments of assessments and in an amount equal thereto.

Section 6—That the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement shall be paid by the issuance of bonds in the manner provided by law.

Section 7—That the director of Public Service be and he is hereby authorized and directed to make and execute a contract for said improvement with the lowest and best bidder after advertising according to law.

"Oh, Ah! Look at what Mother ... she called, then she put ... right around her mother... "You precious darling," she said ... never had such a beau... surprise in my life. And ev... is my favorite color, too, ... you must have worked to ac... it!"

... Mrs. Durkee's face changed ... pitiously. I saw her glance furtively at Edith Fairfax, who was regarding her with a look of cool detached appraisal, then appealingly at Lillian and me, standing together a few feet from her. I knew of what she was afraid, that Edith Fairfax would tell Leila of the original decorations which had been in this room, and would paint the preparations for the bride's reception in far different colors than the rosy hues through which Leila was now surveying them.

"I—I—" she stammered.

I struck in impetuously, angered beyond discretion of the look on Edith Fairfax's face.

"This doesn't begin to express half the work, Leila," I said impressively. "When you know what this little woman really has done, you'll hug her tighter than ever. You know, of course, that she's really only about ten years old," I laughed fondly at my little friend whose eyes were fixed on me with the expression of a child who inadvertently has been imprisoned in a room and sees a rescuer approaching.

"You do her wrong," Dicky put in. "Seven and a half."

"And she got mixed up on your favorite colors'" I went on ignoring Dicky's interruption. "This room was the most exquisite thing last night, but it wasn't in your colors. You'll have to look in her own room for the color scheme that was here as late as this morning to the last detail."

"You don't mean she changed it, with all this work?" Leila exclaimed breathlessly.

"I mean just that," I returned steadily, fortified by the slight curl of Edith Fairfax's lips, and the flash of exasperation which I had seen in her eyes as she turned them on me for a second, then as quickly averted them.

At least I had spiked her guns, I said to myself vulgarly but triumphantly. I knew that even if she told Leila of her suspicion as to the real reason of the first decoration, the bride would attribute it to the cynicism which the older sister had developed since her absence in war work abroad, and which I had heard the younger girl attempt to soften on more than one occasion.

"Oh, you darling!" There was real emotion in Leila's voice, as she fulfilled my prediction and hugged her mother-in-law tighter than ever.

"I'm not the one to hug," Little Mrs. Durkee's voice came muffled and distressed, but with a distinct note of glad relief in it, from Leila's embrace. "I don't believe I'd ever have thought of it by myself. And Lillian and Madge and Edith have worked like horses to get it ready. Lillian, especially. She went to New York on the early train this morning, shopping like mad, returned at noon and has been going it ever since. I should think she'd be ready to drop."

"Do I look as if I were ready for the ministrations of a trained nurse?" Lillian demanded challengingly. "Stop your nonsense, Kitten! take your bow gracefully, and let's have something to eat. I'll bet these folks are starving. I know I am."

"Oh-h!" the little hostess cried. "If those things are burning! Edith, will you see to Leila and help her with her things?"

She scurried down the stairs as a girl of sixteen might have done. I looked at Lillian with admiring eyes. She had diverted her hostess' attention, but saved a situation which might have become too emotional, and had disclaimed credit—all in a sentence. As my eyes met hers, I caught a flash of commendation in them, and knew that she recognized and approved what I had tried to do for Mrs. Durkee.

"Well, Leila!" Dicky drawled. "Much as I'd like to stay and explain to you which of these draperies are cut on the bias and which have curlicues up the sides, I suppose I'd better get out. There's no one else could do it as well, but there's so much professional jealousy around here, I'm going to beat it pronto. Come, Marion, let me give you a piece of advice. Never, never—"

He rushed Lillian's little daughter down the stairs as if he had been her own age, and whatever nonsensical piece of advice he was giving her was lost in the child's peals of laughter. Lillian and I, more sedately following, smiled at each other, not so much at the sound of their mirth, but at the unconscious hit Dicky had made in his nonsensical adieu.

"I think that'll hold dear Edith for awhile," Lillian said with a little click of her teeth, which told me dislike for Edith was as intense as that for some reason or other her liking for Leila was sincere.

TOO WEAK TO WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Quinly's Health. Now She Does Her Housework

Shelbyville, Mo.—"I was only able to do light housework because for months my periods were excessive. I had seen your medicine extensively advertised and thought I would give it a fair trial. I took about eight boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets according to directions and I feel like a different woman. I have not taken any medicine during the past three months and I believe my ailment is cured. I am now able to do all my housework and attend to my poultry and garden. If you feel that my testimonial will benefit anyone you are welcome to use it in your advertisements."—Mrs. L. D. QUINLY, R. F. D. No. 2, Shelbyville, Mo.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them into unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Cutting a Wide Swath

"Cutting a wide swath" in any walk of life means that you must have good blood, steady nerves and strength in reserve

Just as our men showed they had the red blood of courage on the battle fields of France, so will you have the necessary "pep" and the right kind of blood if you make the blood redder and your health better by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. For over fifty years this tonic and blood purifier has had the endorsement of the American public. Last year over a million bottles were sold. So why put off the day of purchase?——Buy NOW of your nearest druggist and gain in vim, vigor and vitality. Other folks have been benefited by Dr. Pierce's remedies, perhaps your neighbors, ask them. Here is what many say:

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"Some years ago I suffered with lowered vitality and liver trouble. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and have had excellent health since. I can never forget what this valuable remedy has done for me and can recommend it for all rundown conditions caused from overwork, or for sluggish liver."—PAUL S. MEGRUE, 5501 Madison Road.

Heat of Red Peppers Breaks Chest Colds

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings the quickest relief. It can not hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

When heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints, relief comes at once.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub for colds, backache, sore muscles, stiff neck, lumbago, or the pains of rheumatism or neuritis, you feel the tingling heat.

In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering so you can hardly get about, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.—Adv.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.—Advt.

TOO TIRED TO WORK?

If you get up in the morning tired, if you weary with little exertion and if vim and go are lacking, depend upon it that your liver is torpid. One dose of Schenck's Mandrake Pills will "wake up" that lazy liver and make you feel like new. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are worth a trial tonight.

GREAT THEORY IS EXPLAINED

Professor Albert Einstein Talks of Relativity.

FUNDAMENTAL LAWS ARE INTERPRETED

Three Big Points in Einstein Theory Which Are Interesting to Average Student.

[By Garrett P. Service.]

[Copyrighted, 1921, by I. N. S.]

New York, April 9—Thanks to the presence in this country of Professor Albert Einstein, I have just had an opportunity, in the course of a social conversation with him, to obtain somewhat clearer ideas concerning the most puzzling points in the application of his great theory of relativity to the fundamental laws of modern science.

There are three chief points of the Einstein theory which stand out conspicuously and to the average reader seem to be rather stumbling blocks than aids to comprehension and these I tried to have cleared up. They are:

"First, that absolute motion has no existence so far as we are concerned, but that all motions that we see or of which we perceive the effects are only relative to another and can be measured in a relative sense. In other words, we have no fixed background to which all motions can alike be referred. Until very lately, it was thought that by refined observation it should be possible to detect the effect of the earth's motion through the ether of space. The failure of the most elaborate attempts to detect such motion was the beginning of Einstein's discovery of the principle of the relativity of motion. This, put in a sentence, means that no uniform motion relative to the ether can be detected.

Proof of Relativity.

We are surrounded every day by proofs of relativity that we ordinarily do not notice. When a railway train, steaming beside our own starts to move, we can scarcely persuade ourselves that it is not our own train that is in motion. This is a perfect example of what is meant by relativity of motion. It becomes more complicated but not less clear, when we apply it to the motion of the earth around the sun, combined with the motion of the sun together with all its planets through space and the probable motion of the entire system of the stars, as we see them, in complicated directions. There is no one background or plane of reference which enables us to detect the absolute motion in any of these cases.

Second, the next stumbling block is the statement that a ray of light, coming from a distant star and passing close to the sun on its way to the earth, is bent or deviated from its course just as if the light consisted of something having weight.

Third, another puzzling point is the conception growing out of the Einstein theories that space does not extend uniformly in every direction independently of the bodies such as planets, suns and stars that it contains, but that space, itself, has what one might call a kind of shape. More specifically that it possesses curvature and that what seems to us a straight line may, if followed far enough, turn out, or perhaps necessarily turn out to be a curve.

Another Point.

Still another thing in the Einstein theory which is difficult for the general reader to grasp, is the idea that what we call time is, in a sense, a fourth dimension of space and that space and time, instead of being, as has generally been assumed by scientific men, heretofore entirely separate and independent things, are essentially connected.

It was with the hope of obtaining with Professor Einstein's aid, a clear statement of the meaning and relations of these various points in his theory that, being fortunately thrown into his company, I took the liberty of questioning him.

In regard to the first point, the statement already made above may stand as representing about as clear a presentment of the matter as can be put in a few words. Its relation to the other points can be developed as we go along. In fact, it comes out immediately in the explanation of the reason why a ray from a star is deviated by the attraction of the sun. This is due to the curvature of space in the neighborhood of a heavy attracting body, such as the sun. At a great distance from an attracting body, space may be essentially straight, but in the immediate neighborhood of such a body it assumes curvature. This is a result of calculations which must be accepted at their face value by those who are not familiar with the higher processes of mathematics.

Time and Space.

It involves the idea of the essential relation of time to space. It is to what is called "space time," or "time space," that this curvature is produced and it is a result of motion. Now, if a ray of light from a star away off in space, billions of miles beyond the sun, passes close to the sun's surface, where space is comparatively curved or where its curvature becomes distinctly manifest, the result is that the ray following, so to speak, the curvature of space through which it passes, is bent out of the course it is formerly pursued, just as if the sun had attracted it. The direction of the bending, or curving of the ray is toward the sun and when the ray, having been thus deflected, reaches the observer's eye on the earth, his vision follows it backwards in a straight line and he sees the star shifted out of its correct position and further from the sun than it would have appeared if there had been no bending of the ray.

Curiously enough Newton had the idea that light consisted of particles of matter that were shot out from the sun and according to that idea which modern science for 100 years has rejected, the simple attraction of the sun would have sufficed to deviate a ray in the same way that we have described, but only to just half the extent. By the Newtonian theory, such a ray should be turned out of its course close to the edge of the sun eighty-seven seconds of arc but by the measurements made at an eclipse a few years ago, the actual deviation of the ray of a star was found to be 175 seconds of arc which accorded substantially with the amount predicted by Einstein's theory.

Einstein Results.

This has sometimes been described as if it simply indicated a doubling of the effect of gravitation. The quantity G, used by physics and astronomers, is represented by the figures thirty-two feet a second. The Einstein results, if interpreted by the ordinary law of gravitation would indicate that the ray of light fell toward the sun, or was drawn toward the sun at the rate of sixty-four feet a second.

"I asked Professor Einstein whether this comparison was a good one. He replied it was true that, according to his theory, the deviation of light is double what it would be on the Newtonian supposition that light consists of particles subject to ordinary gravitation, but he added that it is not true to think that his equations may be represented by the statement that the quantity, G, affecting the ray of light when it passes the sun, becomes magnified into 2G.

"My equations," he said, "are difficult, being based on an altogether different principle and assumption. They are the result of exceedingly long mathematical calculations regarding the geometrical properties of space. You can not say that the physical properties of space are a consequence of the geometrical properties of space. The two are correlated but neither is the consequence of the other."

"When I attempted to form a popular statement of the principle on which these peculiar properties of space are based by Professor Einstein, he good-naturedly remarked that "it would be possible in a lecture of no very great length, to explain the fundamental methods on which these calculations are based and the consequences to which they lead, but between the ideas and the consequences there is that long way which the mathematical calculations go and if you state the consequences after you have stated the ideas, the public has simply to take your word that you can arrive at those consequences from the basis of those ideas. The curvature of space being a consequence of mathematical conclusions from the fundamental principle, the only true road to the conclusion is the mathematical one. But once the fundamental principle is granted, you can make a series of deductions which lead to the result that wherever there is matter, space is curved."

Only Confirmation.

This deviation of a light ray is, with one exception the only physical or experimental confirmation that has yet been obtained of the correctness of Professor Einstein's theory. The exception is that of the planet, Mercury, which for generations has puzzled astronomers by the peculiarity of its motion, which the older theories failed to explain. The Einstein theory accounts for this motion of the perihelion, with remarkable completeness, but the explanation can only be followed by mathematical analysis.

One other confirmation that has been sought, Professor Einstein admits, still fails to be forthcoming. This is a certain minute shifting of the lines in the spectra of moving bodies, such as stars. Professor Einstein told me that at present he does not contemplate any further physical tests, but he clearly insisted upon the fact that terrestrial mechanics are not affected by the developments of the doctrine of relativity. Only in the most refined researches are its effects at present perceptible.

SANDLOT BASEBALL AGAINST "BLACK SOX"

Amateur Teams Can Not Play Outlawed Organiztion.

Cleveland, April 9.—Sandlot baseball, today, went on record as opposing the "Black Sox," as the team being formed by the indicted ball players, formed by members of the Chicago White Sox, is called.

"Any team in the National Baseball federation, the recognized governing body of amateur and semi-professional baseball, which books a game with this outfit faces being dropped from the organization," said J. F. Potts, Sr.

More than 100,000 amateur ball players in America are enrolled in the body. Hundreds of industrial teams are also lined up.

ALLIES STUDY HUGHES NOTE

Interpret It as Stating an Advanced Position.

EXCHANGE OF VIEWS ARE NOW IN ORDER

Disagreement Among Dry Advocates in Federal House Over Enforcement Measures.

Washington, April 9 — Secretary Hughes' note to the Japan e, British, French and Italian governments on mandates is being interpreted abroad, according to information in diplomatic circles here, as stating an advanced position of the American government.

Some diplomats who have studied the text of the communication to Great Britain, as made public by the state department, are apprehensive that it may be considered as reopening the whole subject of mandates.

Full exchanges between the four governments are expected before any one of them replies to Mr. Hughes. In the opinion of some diplomats here Japan's attitude will determine the position to be taken by Great Britain and France and possibly also by Italy. This is based upon the agreement entered into by Great Britain and France with Japan in 1915, before the United States entered the war, whereby Japan was to receive the German islands in the Pacific north of the equator.

New Dry Proposal.

A split developed among dry advocates in the house when Representative Wood, Republican, Indiana, announced that he would introduce a bill transferring enforcement of prohibition from the internal revenue bureau to the department of justice.

Chairman Volstead of the judiciary committee and author of the enforcement act, declared he was opposed to such legislation.

Wood said he believed his measure would remedy nonenforcement conditions. He recalled that he said on the floor of the house last session that he would take such a step if Representative Volstead did not do so, on the ground that the enforcement machinery established by the Volstead act had fallen down hopelessly.

"Some of those who want prohibition enforcement transferred to the department of justice do not want the law rigidly enforced," was Representative Volstead's comment.

THOUSANDS ASKED TO ACCEPT REDUCTION

The Pennsylvania Would Reduce Wages $25 a Month.

Pittsburgh, April 9.—Forty-six thousand women and men, clerical workers of the Pennsylvania system, east and west of Pittsburgh, were today, asked to accept an average wage reduction of $25 a month.

There are thirty-five different wage and salary classifications for the clerical forces. The entering rate for beginner clerks is now $100.76 a month and it is proposed to make this $60 a month, or a reduction of over $40 a month. After that, wages or salaries vary widely, but the majority of workers are paid between $150 and $230 a month.

All such employes would receive a flat reduction of $25 a month, if the Pennsylvania's proposal goes through.

HAYS FAVORS THE REVOKING OF ORDER

President May Revoke Order on Certain Postmasters.

Washington, April 9—The Wilson executive order that placed first, second and third-class postmasters under a modified civil service will be revoked by President Harding if he adopts the recommendations of Postmaster General Hays, it is announced. No idea is entertained, it is said, of restoring presidential postmasters, of which there are about 6,000, to a straight patronage basis. The postmaster general is opposed to such a move and the president is resisting all the pressure to that end from the practical politicians of the party.

It is believed that the revocation order of President Harding is imminent and that it may be issued within a few days. At the same time that he revokes the Wilson order, however, he is expected to issue another requiring applicants for postmasterships to take an examination.

TWENTY-ONE SACKS OF MAIL ARE RIFLED

Robbers Secure Loot Amounting to $5,600.

North Kankakee, Wisconsin, April 9—Seven pouches of first-class mail and fourteen other mail sacks which had been left at the Chicago & Northwestern railway depot here were rifled by mail robbers here, today. The value of the loot is known to be $5,600 and may exceed that.

A license to marry was issued this afternoon to Elwood Burdett Thomas, Marion, and Miss Mary Ann Jenkins, Marion.

SPRING FASHIONS FOR KIDDIES SHOWN HERE

Isn't it a dainty little party dress? The material in the illustration on the left is of fine cotton net of splendid grade, so it will stand tubbing. The hem is full fashioned with two wide tucks at the bottom overlapping the hem. An occasional cotton ornament adorns the lower tuck and the waist is tucked finely, also adorned with corresponding ornaments. On the right is a cool Oliver Twist for the hot day. Usually brother is forgotten when it comes to "dress up" clothes. But not of he possesses a model like this. It is of pongee silk, finished in brown embroidery, but not of the type to feminize it.

KOEHLER CASE REACHES JURY

Fate of Warren Woman Is in the Balance.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF TWO SMALL SONS

An Early Verdict Is Not Expected Owing to Nature of Evidence in Case.

Warren, April 9.—The fate of Mrs. Alta M. Koehler, charged with the murder of her two sons, Warren and William, aged three and five years, respectively, who lost their lives when their home was destroyed by fire, December 5, was placed in the hands of the jury at 12:50 p. m. The jury began deliberation at 1:45 p. m.

An early verdict is not expected owing to the nature of the evidence in the case.

Mrs. Koehler, who had controlled her emotions well throughout the trial, sobbed violently as her counsel Max Brunswick, plead her case. He made a brief plea, stating he was not asking pity for the defendant, but only wanted justice. He strongly intimated that Harry Coller, seventeen, star state's witness and alleged lover of Mrs. Koehler, was guilty of the crime.

Prosecutor Burgess scathingly rebuked the defense for trying to cast blame on Coller, "a mere seventeen-year-old-boy." He cautioned the jury that in case of grave doubt, it was better that twenty guilty ones go free than one innocent person be convicted.

Judge Wilkins delivered his charge to the jury at 12:15. It was brief and merely covered points of law in the case.

DELEGATION FROM MEXICO RECEIVED

Business Men Get Warm Greeting at White House.

Washington, April 9.—President Harding, this afternoon, received a delegation from the chamber of commerce of Mexico, but failed to indicate that the administration plans immediate recognition of Mexico.

The president greeted the Mexican business men warmly and assured them of his good wishes toward Mexico and expressed the hope that the ties of trade might bind the United States and Mexico closer together. The president did not commit himself to any policy, however.

The Mexican business men paid their respects to the president, but made no plea for political recognition for their nation.

REGULATIONS TO COVER BEER AND WINE

Pharmacists To Have Exclusive Right To Make Sales.

Washington, April 9—Beer and wine, bottled in case lots, will be sold by pharmacists exclusively and sales of brewers or distillers direct to consumers will be allowed by the government, if recommendations of Prohibition Commissioner Kramer are approved.

Commissioner Kramer also seeks to incorporate a draft of proposed regulations dealing with beer and wine sales, provisions of which will harass the responsibility of physicians prescribing for their patients and druggists making sales.

MAXWELL PROPERTY IS ORDERED SOLD

Court Gives Receiver Necessary Authority Today.

Indianapolis, April 9.—All the property of the Maxwell Motor Car company in Indiana was ordered sold, today, by decree approved by Judge Baker, of the circuit court of appeals of Chicago, sitting in place of Judge Anderson, in federal court.

The decree, which paves the way for consolidation with the Chalmers company, is similar to those entered in Dayton, today, and in Detroit, several days ago. All properties of the Maxwell company in the United States are to be sold and the receiver is permitted to sell practically all stock of the Chalmers Motor Car company at Detroit.

W. L. Mitchell, of Detroit, is named receiver and the minimum bid to be considered for the Maxwell property is $10,915,000. The debts of the Maxwell company are given as $16,000,000 and of the Chalmers $21,000,000.

WORKING TO SAVE LIFE OF INFANT

Physicians Find Babe's Lung Full of Talcum Powder.

Charleston, West Virginia, April 9.—Three physicians are working, today, to save the life of Nancy, eight-months-old infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Fry, one of whose lungs is said to be filled with talcum powder inhaled while the child was playing with a box containing the powder.

This is the third similar case among infants occurring here within the past few weeks. Several days ago, a baby of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Sheriff, after inhaling a quantity of talcum while at play, developed pneumonia, but the child is now reported out of danger. About three weeks ago, a six-months-old infant died from the effects of inhaling a quantity of the powder.

SIX SALOONISTS ARE UNDER CHARGES

Said To Have Hired Substitutes To Serve Sentences.

Cleveland, April 9—Federal indictments charging half a dozen Cleveland saloon keepers with conspiracy will be asked shortly by Federal Prohibition Agent Counts, following discovery that they had hired substitutes to serve workhouse sentences imposed on them for violation of the liquor law. At the same time Mr. Counts announced a Bertillon system of photographic measurements would be installed whereby positive identification of all men given workhouse sentences in federal court would be forwarded to the Warrensville infirmary, from which place it is believed the substitutes have been obtained. Counts says he has definite information that six such substitutes have been employed lately.

Refuses Wage Cut.

Columbus, April 9.—Refusing to accept a wage cut of two dollars a week for each worker, 125 union laborers, employed by the August Wagner Products company, went on strike here today.

Workers Laid Off.

Columbus, April 9.—By laying off 600 additional workers, today, the Pennsylvania railroad reduced its force of shop men here to 8,500 men as against 5,200 last November.

Dies at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ontario, April 9.—Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture in the cabinet of Sir Wilfred Laurier several years ago, died here, today, at the age of seventy-one.

TRAFFIC TO PAY FOR HIGHWAYS

President Harding Will Halt Federal Aid.

STATES MUST PLAN TO MAINTAIN ROADS

The President Thinks Vehicle Licenses Should Be Equal to Upkeep of State Roads.

Washington, April 9.—President Harding intends to halt federal appropriations for the aid of states in highway construction until the states provide adequate means for the maintenance of the roads constructed.

The executive will make this recommendation that the states should make vehicles license fees sufficiently high to cover the cost of road maintenance, and he is opposed to granting federal aid to states which fail to make adequate provisions for upkeep.

The executive will make this recommendation to congress and he feels so strongly on the question that he probably would veto any legislation, which failed to make road appropriations conditional upon a proper discharge of state obligations.

Thinks Millions Are Wasted.

Mr. Harding regards the greater part of the millions of dollars so far expended by the government on road construction as so much money wasted. Roads have been built at vast expense with federal aid, but they proved unequal to the wear of motor and truck traffic, the states failed to maintain the highways in repair, and complete reconstruction is now necessary.

Road construction, the president points out, costs more, today, than did railroad construction a few years ago. Heavy motor traffic is constantly increasing, and continuous maintenance work has become a necessity. He favors the patrol system of repair work, such as obtains on the railways and on highways in Europe.

The toll roads of other days had their virtues, for the roads were kept in repair at the expense of the traffic. The president does not contemplate a return to toll gates, but he does believe that the traffic should bear the cost of upkeep. He favors graded license fees, which would be low on light cars and high on trucks and high powered pleasure cars.

BARUCH DECLARES GERMANY CAN PAY

Would Fix Amount of Reparations at $15,000,000,000.

Washington, April 9.—Fifteen billion dollars as the sum Germany is able and probably willing to pay in reparations is estimated by B. M. Baruch, chairman of the American reparations commission, in the current issue of the official publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. "The crux of the world industrial and commercial problem lies in the fixing of the reparations that Germany must pay," he said.

Baruch, who took a large part in drafting the economic sections of the peace treaty, also suggests, with terms, a conditional cancellation of the interallied indebtedness. As one of the terms, he suggests instead of canceling outright any part of the British indebtedness that the United States cancel conditionally the amount spent by Great Britain in this country for munitions during the war, this sum to be a demand liability, without interest, and to be collected in case this country become involved in a future war.

KEEP WEATHER EYE OPEN FOR A BAD HALF DOLLAR

C. A. Meddles Makes Complaint to Police Today.

The attention of the police was called to the fact that a distributor of spurious half dollars was probably at work in the city, although only one of the coins was turned in. C. A. Meddles, manager of the Union Depot hotel, took the counterfeited half dollar to headquarters and turned it over to the department. It was a fairly good counterfeit of the old half dollar.

Ensign Surrenders.

Boston, April 9.—Ensign Joseph J. Lynam, missing naval assistant paymaster, sought by the government for many months in connection with a shortage of $22,000 in the accounts of the scout cruiser, Chester, surrendered here, today, to the department of justice. Lynam dropped out of sight, leaving a wife and two children, after cutting a wide swath in Boston theatrical circles. He was known to chorus and taxi drivers as "Santa Claus."

Will Is Admitted.

New York, April 9.—The attempts of Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, widow of the late Theodore P. Shonts, to break the traction magnate's will in which he left the bulk of his fortune to "my friend, Amanda C. Thomas," had ended today. Mrs. Shonts formally withdrew all of the charges she had made against Mrs. Thomas and the will was admitted to probate.

WALDO FRESHMEN GIVE MISS DENMAN SURPRISE

Roy Stoner Moves to the Elmer Selanders Farm.

Waldo, O., April 9.—[Special.]—The freshman class, of the Waldo schools, gave Gertrude Denman a pleasant surprise Thursday evening by calling at her home to help celebrate her sixteenth birthday. The young people passed the evening with games and music. Mrs. Jacob Denman served.

Roy Stoner this week moved to the Elmer Selanders farm east of town. Mr. Selanders moved to La-Rue where he has been employed as one of the rural mail carriers.

Will F. Groll, Monday, returned to the Burnison sanatorium, at Grand Rapids, Michigan, where he will resume treatment, after a few days at home.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Thomas Wyatt and daughter, Jessie, entertained the Methodist Aid society at their home south of town. Regular business was transacted and the afternoon passed socially. Mrs. Samuel Bond and Mrs. Conklin were visitors.

Miss Lucile Benedict, of Ashboro entertained Thursday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Benedict. Mrs. Arthur Bender, Isabelle Bowers, Mrs. Charles Selanders, Mrs. Ora Warner, Miss Ruth Shull, Gladys Palmer and Mayme Rhodes. The young ladies passed the time with various pleasures. Miss Benedict was home for a few days visit.

The roads south of Norton, after the rain Friday evening, were deplorable. Several machines were forced to remain fast in the mud, until morning. Eight were stuck at one time.

Little Wesley Frey, who was taken to the City hospital at Marion, two weeks ago for an operation on the left ear, has been able to be moved to his home.

Mrs. J. M. Selanders was hostess this week to the Marion Thursday afternoon Card club which was attended by almost the entire membership. Mrs. Selanders was assisted in serving by Mrs. Kate Selanders and Mrs. Mary Smith.

J. W. Doubikin, of near White Sulphur, this week moved to the Grace Michel property recently occupied by the family of the late Carl Kirkpatrick.

A boys' and girls' conference was organized at the M. E. church Sunday evening by the county superintendent, Mrs. B. D. Osborn, and associate, Carl Ebert, and Miss Victoria Jackson, county president of the girls' conference and Raymond Selanders, president of the boys' conference. The local organization for the girls will be Ruth Neville, president; Helen Lawrence, vice-president; Helen Fetter, secretary, and Marie Lust, treasurer. For the boys, Raymond Selanders was elected president; Donald Glaze, vice president; Cecil Gabler, secretary and treasurer.

WEEKS WOULD LIFT A LEGISLATIVE BAN

Would Permit Sale of Surplus Food in Europe.

Washington April 9.—Secretary of War Weeks, today, wrote to the chairman of the military affairs committee of the house and senate recommending that the legislative ban on the sale of surplus food in Europe be lifted.

Secretary Weeks said the war department has a large surplus of food, including sixty million pounds of canned beef, for which there appears to be no demand in this country.

John Smulski, of the Polish relief organization, today called on the secretary and asked that surplus food be sold in Poland on credit.

BIDS FOR MACADAM FOR THE YEAGER-GOYER ROAD

Bids for the construction of a twelve-foot macadam road on the Yeager & Goyer road in Pleasant township were opened by the county commissioners at noon today. S. M. Wooley, Marion, presented a bid of $27,767.18, the amount of the engineer's estimate. Ray Ruffner, of Marion, presented a bid of $27,667.76, which is $99.40 less than the estimate. The portion of the road to be improved is one and one-sixteenth miles long. Letting of the contract was postponed by the commissioners.

Decline in Price.

Columbus, April 9.—A decline of one cent a gallon in the price of gasolene, effective Monday, was announced here, today, by the Standard Oil company. The new quotations will be twenty-seven cents at filling stations and twenty-six at tank wagons. Naptha drops one cent, to twenty-five cents and varnolene oil, a paint drier, declines a penny, to twenty-six and one half cents.

An Appointment.

Washington, April 9.—The appointment of Captain Julian L. Latimer, commander of the naval district and stationed at Key West, to be judge advocated general of the navy, succeeding Rear Admiral George E. Clark, was recommended to the president, today, by Secretary of the Navy Denby. Latimer is a West Virginian.

BIRTHS

A son was born Friday night to Mr and Mrs. R. V. Price, of Sawyer road.

LEGISLATION BY CONGRESS

Program Discussed by President and House Leader.

SOME MEASURES TO HAVE RIGHT-OF-WAY

Bills Submitted by Ways and Means Committee Will Be Given Preference.

Washington, April 9.—The legislative program for the next congress was the subject for discussion, today, between President Harding and Representative Mondell, Republican leader of the house.

Legislation offered by the ways-and-means committee will have the right-of-way in the house, Mondell said. He outlined the program of the house as tentatively fixed as follows:

Emergency tariff bill, anti-dumping bill, army and navy appropriation bill and the immigration restriction bill.

The president will start conferences with the railroad executives, next week, conferring first with T. Dewitt Cuyler, head of the Railroad Executives' association.

Is a Candidate.

Washington, April 9.—Frank Feeney, labor leader of Philadelphia who was active in organizing labor supporters of President Harding in the last campaign, is a prominent candidate for the office of prohibition commissioner of the United States to succeed John F. Kramer, according to reports in labor circles here.

CONFERENCE FAILS TO BRING RESULTS

Cleveland, April 9.—Conferences, today, of President John J. Stanley and officials of the Carmen's union to negotiate a new wage scale, effective May 1, proved fruitless, although President Stanley stated that another meeting would be held at 11 o'clock, tomorrow, in the hope of finding a common meeting ground.

Representatives of the conductors and motormen offered to accept the proposed wage cut of twenty per cent., provided the requirement of union membership among platform men was maintained and there there was no change in the rules providing extra compensation for Sunday, overtime and long-swing runs, or to arbitrate remaining differences if the "closed-shop principle" was maintained.

NINE THOUSAND BLANKS FOR PERSONAL TAXES

They Are Put in Mails by Auditor Decker Today.

Nine thousand blanks for personal tax returns were mailed today from the office of County Auditor B. C. Decker. Tomrrow is tax-listing day and all property owned on that day is taxable. The returns must be in the county auditor's office by May 1 to avoid payment of a penalty of $100.

MRS. MARY A. JENKINS AND ERNEST BURDETTE
